Evidently we don't think we need demons to make us be so bad. We can do it without them. Fr. Joseph Levine Oct 31, 2015 at 3:52 pm - Reply. Titivillus must really love 'autocorrect'! sue200012 Oct 31, 2015 at 5:30 pm - Reply. I think of demons every day because I opened the door to them back when.

Did a Demon Make Me Do It? ~ The Imaginative Conservative

It's necessary for me to state that the various demons and demion (half human/half demon) aren't at all the all-too-typical evil, human-hating, human-killing/eating varieties so often encountered. They have their own society with its own rules and boundaries existing partially in parallel to, and partially connected with, the world we know.

But "the devil made me do it" is far too often used to excuse our own bad choices. Except in an instance of demon possession, the devil cannot make us do anything. The devil is absolutely worthy of blame for much of the evil in the world, but using the devil as a scapegoat for our own sinful choices is counterproductive to achieving victory over sin.
